Adem Filali

CO-FOUNDER

International Cooperation & One Health

Connecting agricultural, environmental and institutional networks across Africa and MENA.

Adem combines expertise in agricultural biosurveillance, animal health and One Health with cross-regional project development. His work is closely related to institutional engagement in North Africa, the Maghreb and the Middle East and North Africa, connecting local agricultural and environmental concerns with the requirements of international partnerships.

CORE EXPERTISE

- MENA regional cooperation
- One Health
- Agricultural biosurveillance
- International development programmes

Adem Filali

Education & Credentials

- Master's degree in Animal Science, University of Carthage, Tunisia
- Professional background in One Health, agriculture and animal-health systems
- Experience in cross-border project planning and international development

Areas of Expertise

- Local field research and cross-cultural communication
- Assessing agricultural and animal-health needs
- Proposal development, institutional engagement and partnership facilitation
- Integrating environmental sustainability and public-health concerns

Career Experience

- Project engagement in North Africa, the Maghreb and MENA
- Work related to agricultural biosurveillance and animal-health systems
- Familiarity with the programme ecosystems of FAO, GIZ, AFD and the World Bank
- Individual participation in One Health professional collaborations

Professional Focus at GIDI

Connects international partnerships, agriculture and One Health expertise.